Mission Statement

Founded in 1921, Physical Therapy is the official publication of the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA) and is an international, scholarly, peer-reviewed journal. Physical Therapy serves APTA members, other health care professionals, and patients/clients by (1) documenting basic and applied knowledge related to physical therapy, (2) providing evidence to guide clinical decision making, and (3) publishing a variety of research that is relevant to the field and diverse opinions that are based in scholarly arguments. Physical Therapy, like the profession it serves, strives to enhance the health and well-being of all members of society.

Readers are invited to submit manuscripts to Physical Therapy. The Journal's content—including editorials, commentaries, letters, and book reviews—represents the opinions of the authors and should not be attributed to the Journal or its Editorial Board. Content does not reflect the official policy of APTA or the institution with which the author is affiliated, unless expressly stated.

PTJ Online at www.ptjournal.org

Physical Therapy's (PTJ) Web site posts articles ahead of print and rapid reader responses to articles. Articles, letters to the editor, and editorials are available in full-text starting with Volume 79 (1999) and in searchable PDF format starting with Volume 70 (1990). Entire issues are available online beginning with Volume 86 (2006).
